Different students have different strengths. A classroom based on a multiple intelligences model meets the needs of all students and raises their awareness of their own strengths and self-worth. Following on from the success of Seven Ways at Once, Helen McGrath and Toni Noble continue their development of practical classroom strategies based on Gardners (now) eight intelligences and the newest revision (2001) of Blooms revised taxonomy. Eight Ways at Once is a series of two teacher reference books that update Gardners multiple intelligences model and translate the new revised version of Blooms taxonomy. Book 1 introduces and explains the revisions to both Gardners and Blooms models and outlines over 200 new classroom strategies. Book 2 applies the strategies from Book 1 to five units of work: Animals, Literature, Space and Flight, Health and Wellbeing, and Planet Earth.
